The Philippine capital of Manila is one of Southeast Asia's largest cities, but most tourists are content to ignore, booking just a few hours of stoppages before starting their Philippine tourist hotspots like Boracay and Bohol. The following list explains what they lack: a range of sites with rich tapestries of Filipino culture, expressed architecture, natural beauty and cuisine. (Read on how around Manila, philippines make sense of your transportation options.) 01 of 12 Bertrand Gardel/Getty Images Address in Intramuros, Manila, 1002 Metro Manila, Philippines Onceitme Manila indicated only the city part of the intramuros walls. Inside Intramuros, Spain's colonial presence in Manila ruled the rest of the Philippines from an independent world that includes seven churches (among them the Church of San Agustin, still standing today), the governor general's palace, and the towering Fort Santiago. Today, Walled From Intramuros is now open to tourists; visitors can explore Spanish management relics in the Philippines, including museums such as Bahay Tinoy, which is designed to tell the story of the Filipino and Chinese community. (Try our self-guided walking tour of Intramuros.) Getting there: Ride LRT-1 (Yellow Line) to the central terminal station; a pedestrian overpass at Manila Town Hall, which crosses Padre de Burgos and leads to the entrance of Victoria Street to Intramuros. 02 of 12 Address Rizal Park, Ermita, Manila, 1000 Metro Manila, Philippines Massive Public Park facing Manila Bay - Rizal Park - has something for everyone. The light and sound show reactivates the death of Filipino national hero (and park namesake) Jose Rizal, weekend Kali martial arts lessons at Agrifina Circle, and one of Manila's rare wide open spaces, free for all to enjoy. Rizal himself is buried here under the Rizal monument obelisk. The monument has the solemn protection of the Marines; Tourists often come to watch the guard exchange at 12:00 on the western end of Rizal Park you will find some interesting attractions clustered around the Quirino Grandstand complex, including manila's huge ocean park aquarium and the Museo Pambata (Children's Museum). Getting there: To get to Rizal Park, drive LRT-1 (Yellow Line) to the United Nations station, then go down the rest of the road. 03 of the 12 When a heavily armed fortress guarded the entrance to the Bay, Corregidor Island served as Manila's final line of defense during the Japanese invasion; The Battle of Corregidor killed countless U.S. troops in grunts before the American side surrendered. Corregidore has a number of memorials standing between the ruins of the American settlement that stood on the island between 1900 and 1941. American fortifications and weapons batteries can be reached by tourist buses traveling on winding concrete roads. Most of the tours culminated in a visit to the Malinta Tunnel, an underground shelter that included General Douglas MacArthur before moving to Australia. Getting there: Sun Cruises offers an all-day tour of Corregidor, which starts at 4 p.m at the Esplanade seaside terminal and ends at 4 p.m.m including a high-speed ride to and from Manila. 04 of the 12 Three American-era government buildings near Rizal Park have been transformed into museums that showcased Philippine culture and history. The former financial building is now a museum for the People of the Philippines; its corridors now exhibit ethnographic relics from many indigenous cultures in the Philippines. Rescued relics from the wreckage of Manila Galleon san diego can be seen on the museum's second floor. The former agricultural building has been transformed into the Natural History Museum, where the Philippines' rich biodiversity sits on display around a giant lobby ornament sculpture similar to DNA. The former Senate building now serves as the Philippine National Museum, where a priceless work of art by famous Filipino artists stands next door Catholic saints saved from the Philippines many old churches. Getting there: Take a taxi to get here, or ride LRT-1 (Yellow Line) to united nations avenue station, then walk the rest of the way. Next up to 5 out of 12 below. 05 of 12 rweisswald / Getty Images Address Binondo, Manila, 1006 Metro Manila, Philippines Binondo district was founded as the home of the Spanish-era Manila Christian chinese population. Today its hodge-podge of skyscrapers and ancient shops nonetheless remains a cultural center in Manila's Chinoyos. The Binondo Church represents the Paradox of Chinese Culture in the Philippines - a Catholic Church with different Chinese influences, the Binondo Church to meet the spiritual needs of Filipino and Chinese Catholics. Stroll deeper into the narrow streets of Binondo to experience amazing food and culture, where you can experience the unique styles of Masuki, feng shui tips sunrise and Chinese-inspired! Eng Bee Tin sweets and pastries. Read our Philippines food safari experience from a first-hand account of the Binondo foodie visit. Getting there: Take a taxi to get here, or ride the LRT-1 (Yellow Line) to carriedo station, then walk the rest of the way. 06 of 12 Carlo Zamora/Getty Images Address Baywalk, Ermita, Manila, Metro Manila, Philippines Don't leave Manila without witnessing one of its spectacular sunsets over Manila Bay. You can see it well from the Baywalk on Roxas Boulevard overlooking the sea, or you can see it right on manila bay itself. on a Manila Bay dinner cruise. From the protected upper floor of the ferry in the open air, guests can watch the sunset and see the glowing light of manila's skyline as the night settles. Onboard dinner and entertainment complete the Manila Bay cruise experience. Two services to manila bay cruise business with each other: Prestige Cruises and cruise ferry MVP Spirit of Manila, operated by Corregidor ferry provider Sun Cruises. Both services depart from the Esplanade seaside terminal, close to the Mall of Asia complex. Getting there: Take a taxi to Roxas Boulevard or the Asian mall complex. 07 out of 12 Even the largest city in the Philippines craves fresh from the market goods; Manila's weekend markets serve this high demand. Weekends tourists hit Makati's Salcedo Village Market (open on Saturdays) and Legazpi Village Market (open on Sundays) buying homemade fish paste, rice sweets called samana, and handmade crafts. Further north, the massive Sidcor weekend market is a market for stalls selling everything from fresh meat to seedlings to regional food dishes. Sidcor is as busy as Makati markets are neighboring, but its food court is the best place to sample freshly made Filipino delicacies such as Lechon kawali, Caldereta and an incredibly unique egg dish, balut. Getting there: Ride an MRT-3 (Blue Line) to Ayala station, then walk to the relevant weekend markets in Makati; or ride the same line to Quezon get to Sidcor. 08 of 12 Joseph Oropel/Getty Images Address Bonifacio Global City, Taguig, Metro Manila, Philippines BGC feels almost foreign to Manila: a parklike business area with almost as many museums and open-air shopping districts as office buildings. Bars and restaurants can be found almost everywhere throughout the BGC, but most of them are located along Bonifacio High Street, a major street-style shopping district housing some of the world's best retail and catering brands. High-end hotels are also dominated by the BGC skyline - Shangri-La forte is just one example. The Patriotic Detour (for U.S. citizens anyway) can be found at the Philippine counterpart's Arlington Cemetery nearby: the 152-acre Manila American Cemetery has the graves of 17,202 American and Allied soldiers. Getting there: Take a taxi, or ride an MRT-3 (Blue Line) to Ayala Station. Take a walk to the McKinley Exchange Corporate Center to take the bus, go to BGC. Updated bus routes can be found in the BGC app. Next up to 9 out of 12 below. 09 of the 12 Address Araneta Center, General Araneta Avenue, Cubao, Quezon City, 1109 Metro Manila, Philippines Phone +63 2 8911 1959 Formerly a shoe emporium called Marikina Shoe Expo, its takeover of creative types led to its transformation into the cutting-edge Cubao X, where cross-pollination vintage stores and indie artists produce uniquely Filipino brand retro magic. You can find old school toys, movie merch and handmade Filipino souvenirs in Cubao X vintage stores: Grey Market Vintage, UVLA and My Breathing Space, among others. Studio soup sells zines from the Philippines and across Asia.Vinyl collectors can browse collections curated by Gold Digger and Vinyl Dump. Atteliers like Kendo Creative sell artisan stickers, enamel pins, bags and maps created by up-and-coming artists. Food can also dig into the cubao x restaurant and bar scene, which Bellini's properly holds for Italian food; Fred's Revolution craft beer and Filipino food; and Habanero's kitchen bar for the world of adventure cuisine. Traveling with children? A detour near Bellini leads to the interactive Art museum art in island, where you can pose for selfies with fantastic backdrops. Getting there: Take a taxi, or ride an MRT-3 (Blue Line) to araneta-Cubao station, where you can walk to Cubao X. 10 of 12 Luca Tettoni/robertharding/Getty Images Manila heat can be intolerable between March and July (more on the weather in the Philippines); Manila residents and tourists escape the heat at Tagaytay, located 54 miles south of Manila at a higher altitude overlooking Lake Taal and the volcano. The quiet city is home to mountain resorts and hotels, which boast excellent vantage points to view the Taal Volcano. If you want to visit the volcano itself, it can also be sorted out: you will need to take a jeepney to the lips of the lake and negotiate a trip with one of the many touts waiting Taal just sleeps though - consult with Make sure he's not restless before making his way there. Getting there: Ride LRT-1 (Yellow Line), then get off Gil Puyat station (Google Maps). Stroll to the DLTB bus station below, then take the bus to Nasugbu, Balayan or Lemery, all of which stop in Tagaytay. The bus price tagaytay costs PHP 80 (about $1.50), with a commute to work for two to three hours. 11 out of 12 Stuart Dee/Getty Images You can spend your entire Manila vacation just relaxing in any of the metropolis's expanding centers. And expanding, we mean, you will find the largest shopping centers in the world. Sm City North EDSA is located in Quesicillon, north of Makati. Its 4.3 million sq. m. Located at the other end of the EDSA highway, sister property in Mall of Asia overlooks Manila Bay, its air-conditioned interior and upscale shops offering sweet relief from the tireless heat outdoors. Looking for budget shopping opportunities? Go to Greenhills Shopping Centre, where you will find a huge market selling local carvings, treats, knockoffs and South Sea gems. Getting there: First-time Manila visitors want to take a taxi to Greenhills and Mall of Asia. SM City North EDSA easy access to MRT-3 (blue line); stop at North Avenue station, then cross through Trinoma Mall in SM City. 12 of 12 just north of the hyper-modern Ayala business district of Makati, the proudly bohemian Poblacion district keeps it real hipsters and backpackers. A local population called WilliamsBurgos (an area of Burgos Street portmanteau with Brooklyn Williamsburg), Poblacion mixes the seeding with the most advanced - its go-go bars, hostels, watering holes and restaurants show the more experimental and authentic side of Manila. The food and drink scene in Poblacion seems to be changing from month to month, but several names stand out: Wartusawa Oyster Bar serves fresh oysters from Aklan and other Asian-influenced seafood dishes; A'Toda Madre supplies top shelves of liquors and mixtos; Dulo combines an Asian-style restaurant/bar with a Filipino artist's alier. Poblacion also has some of Manila's best backpack hostels, including Z Hostel, MNL Boutique Hostel and Lokal. Getting there: Poblacion is easily accessible by taxi. Taxi.
